REDSKINS LOOKING TO JOIN WIN COLUMN AS ST. LOUIS VISITS

The Washington Redskins will open their 2009 home slate this Sunday when they welcome the St. Louis Rams to FedExField. Kickoff is set for 1 p.m. ET.

The game will be broadcast to a regional audience by Fox-TV with Sam Rosen calling the play-by-play and Tim Ryan providing the color.

The contest can be heard on the Redskins Radio Network with Larry Michael on the call, Pro Football Hall of Famers and Redskins legends Sam Huff and Sonny Jurgensen serving as the color analysts, and Doc Walker on the sideline.

Jorge Andres and Mario Alfaro will call the game in Spanish on ESPN Deportes 730.

Similar to 2008, the Redskins opened their season with a loss to the New York Giants at the Meadowlands. Washington hopes the immediate success that followed last season's opening game defeat is repeated as well, as the Redskins reeled off an impressive quartet of victories from Weeks 2-5. They will also have a chance for some redemption as that four-game win streak came to a halt at the hands of the then 0-4 St. Louis Rams at FedExField.

On the opposite sideline for the Redskins will be familiar foe Steve Spagnuolo, who spent the last decade as a defensive coach in the NFC East. Spagnuolo, who began his NFL career as a Redskins pro personnel intern in 1983, served as the Eagles' defensive quality control coach (1999-2001), defensive backs coach (2001-2003) and linebackers coach (2004-06), before being hired as the New York Giants' defensive coordinator in 2007, where he earned a Super Bowl ring.

Washington will combat Spagnuolo's familiarity with an offense that showed promise in Week 1. Facing one of the NFL's best defenses and fiercest pass rushes, Washington quarterback Jason Campbell completed 19-of-26 passes for 211 yards, with one touchdown and one interception for a passer rating of 93.6. Campbell found comfort working the middle of the field as he hooked up seven times each with tight end Chris Cooley and wide receiver Antwaan Randle El, who appeared settled into his new role in the slot.

Washington's defense was tested by the league's best running attack in 2008, and held Brandon Jacobs, Ahmad Bradshaw and company to a 3.3.-yards per carry average on 31 attempts. New addition Albert Haynesworth proved formidable in the interior, while linebacker London Fletcher appeared in mid-season form, racking up 18 tackles. Fellow linebacker Rocky McIntosh added 11 tackles, while safety Chris Horton had 10. All four men registered a stop for a loss, while defensive end Andre Carter had a sack and a forced fumble.

The unit, which ranked No. 4 in the league in 2008, will face another daunting task in St. Louis' Steven Jackson. A year ago, the Redskins defense limited Jackson to 79 yards on 22 carries (3.6 avg.), but allowed rookie receiver Donnie Avery four catches for 43 yards, including a 23-yarder with 1:13 to play to the Washington 16, setting up Josh Brown's game-winning field goal.

Overall, the Redskins own a 20-8-1 lead in the regular-season se-

WASHINGTON REDSKINS HEAD COACH JIM ZORN

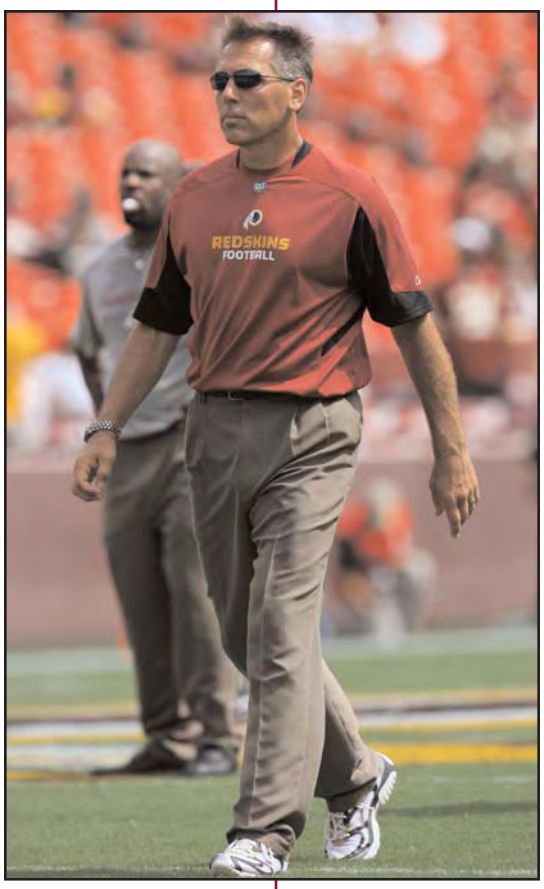
Jim Zorn is in his second season with the Washington Redskins after being named the franchise's 27th head coach on February 10, 2008.

The 2008 campaign marked Zorn's first season as a head coach in the National Football League, and he guided the Redskins to an 8-8 record in the competitive NFC East. Under Zorn, the Redskins recorded a pair of wins over the Philadelphia Eagles, who advanced to the NFC Championship Game, and an impressive victory over the eventual NFC Champion Arizona Cardinals.



Well-regarded around the NFL for his offensive acumen, Zorn was originally hired as the Redskins' offensive coordinator on Jan. 26, 2008. He impressed Redskins Owner Daniel M. Snyder and Executive Vice President of Football Operations Vinny Cerrato so much that, two weeks later, they decided to offer him the head coaching job.

Zorn made an instant impact in 2008 as the Redskins raced out to a 6-2 start, including consecutive road wins at Dallas and Philadelphia. Zorn complemented the Redskins' bruising running attack with his version of the West Coast Offense, a combination that helped the Redskins finish eighth in the NFL in rushing yards per game (130.9).

Under Zorn's guidance, defensive coordinator Greg Blache oversaw a Redskins defensive unit that finished second in the NFC and fourth in the NFL in overall defense, limiting opponents to 288.8 yards per game. Washington also allowed the sixth fewest points per game (18.5) in the league in 2008.

Zorn's new offense paid immediate dividends as four starters earned Pro Bowl honors. Running back Clinton Portis, who earned his second Pro Bowl selection and his first in five seasons with the Redskins, finished fourth in the NFL in rushing yards (1,487). Tight end Chris Cooley earned his second consecutive Pro Bowl appearance and led the team with a career-high 83 receptions for 849 yards. Tackle Chris Samuels earned his sixth Pro Bowl appearance - marking the third-most in franchise history - while fullback Mike Sellers earned his first Pro Bowl selection in his eighth NFL season.

Zorn, an NFL quarterback from 1976-87 and an NFL assistant coach for 11 years, has an approach that he describes as "constant and consistent" in terms of how he manages coaches and players. His Redskins team reflects his philosophy of playing smart, steady, and mistake-free football.

That was demonstrated early as the Redskins became the first team in NFL history to not record an offensive turnover in its first five games. Quarterback Jason Campbell was perhaps the greatest beneficiary of Zorn's expertise with the quarterback position. Zorn played an instrumental role in the fifth-year quarterback's maturation into an efficient starting quarterback in the NFL.

In his second season as starter, Campbell established career highs in completions (315), passing attempts (506), passing yards (3,245), touchdown passes (13) and passer rating (84.3). Additionally, Campbell showed rapid improvement under Zorn in protecting the football as he finished first in the NFL in interception percentage (1.2), throwing just six interceptions in 506 passing attempts. During Zorn's first offseason, he introduced unique quarterback drills that had a direct impact on Campbell's productivity. Campbell established a club record by throwing 271 consecutive passes without an interception, the fifth-longest streak in NFL history.

Zorn joined the Redskins from the Seattle Seahawks where he spent seven seasons (2001-07) as quarterbacks coach.

During his time in Seattle, Zorn worked with Seahawks Head Coach Mike Holmgren and Offensive Coordinator Gil Haskell in implementing the team's offense while also furthering the development of the team's quarterbacks.

Zorn tutored QB Matt Hasselbeck who set a franchise record with 3,841 passing yards in 2003. Hasselbeck has become the franchise's most-efficient passer (85.1 rating) while joining Zorn as the only Seahawks quarterback to pass for 3,000-plus yards in three consecutive seasons.

In 2007 under Zorn, Hasselbeck set Seattle single-season marks for attempts (562), completions (352) and yards (3,966). He also threw for a career-high 28 touchdowns en route to his third Pro Bowl selection.

In 2006, Hasselbeck started just 12 games after suffering a knee injury in the middle of the season and finished the year with a fractured finger on his left hand. In the interim, Zorn helped with the development of Seneca Wallace, who completed 58 percent of his passes, tossed eight touchdowns, and posted a 76.2 passer rating and a 2-2 record in the most extensive playing time of his four-year career.

In 2005, Zorn guided Hasselbeck to his second Pro Bowl appearance as he became the NFC's top-rated passer (4th NFL) with a 98.2 rating en route to Super Bowl XL. Hasselbeck directed the NFL's second-ranked offense to a franchise-record 11 consecutive wins. In his four December games, he posted the fourth-best passer rating in NFL history (135.5), including 10 touchdowns and just one interception, while completing 76 percent of his passes.

Zorn's 2002 campaign had Trent Dilfer open the season as the starter and concluded with Hasselbeck under center. Seattle's passing attack ranked third in the NFL, averaging 254.9 yards a game. Hasselbeck finished the season ranked first in the NFC with a 63.7 completion percentage and second in the NFC with a 87.8 passer rating. Hasselbeck passed for more than 300 yards four times, including a franchise-record 449 in the season finale at San Diego. Hasselbeck joined Zorn as the only Seahawks quarterbacks to pass for at least 300 yards in back-to-back games. Zorn accomplished the feat in 1979 and 1981.

Zorn's 2001 quarterback crop included starter Hasselbeck, Super Bowl XXXV quarterback Dilfer and 2000 part-time starter Brock Huard. Zorn groomed Hasselbeck and helped the first-year starter to become the AFC's fifth-rated passer on third down with a rating of 80.6.

Zorn joined the Seahawks as quarterbacks coach after serving in the same capacity with the Detroit Lions (1998-00). He was instrumental in the development of rookie quarterback Charlie Batch in 1998. Batch's 88.3 passer rating that season ranks as the fourth-highest rookie mark in NFL history. Zorn broke into the NFL coaching ranks as an offensive assistant for the Seahawks in 1997.

Zorn spent eight seasons in the collegiate ranks before his pro debut. He spent two seasons (1995-96) as quarterbacks coach at the University of Minnesota and three seasons (1992-94) as the offensive coordinator at Utah State. His first collegiate coaching job was as an offensive assistant/quarterbacks and wide receivers coach at Boise State from 1989-91.

His professional playing career began in the Seahawks' inaugural 1976 season, where he started all 14 games at quarterback. He went on to play nine seasons for the Seahawks. After departing Seattle, he finished his playing career with the Green Bay Packers (1985), the Canadian Football League's Winnipeg Blue Bombers (1986) and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (1987).

Zorn is one of only eight players inducted to the Seahawks' Ring of Honor. He was named NFC Offensive Rookie of the Year (1976) and ranks third in the Seahawks' record book behind Dave Krieg and Hasselbeck in yards (20,122), completions (1,593), attempts (2,992), and touchdowns (107). His three consecutive 3,000-yard seasons were tops in team history, since broken by Hasselbeck in 2005, and he was the first Seattle quarterback to record back-to-back 300-plus yard passing games - a feat he accomplished twice. Zorn was recently inducted into the State of Washington Sports Hall of Fame during a pregame ceremony prior to the Redskins' game at Seattle on November 23, 2008.

Zorn, 56, and his wife, Joy, have four children: daughters Rachael, Sarah, and Danielle, and son Isaac. Rachael is married to Neal Mitchell, and the two are proud parents of daughter Hollis Joy.

Jim and Joy Zorn are active in Medical Teams International and Pro Athletes Outreach. Medical Teams International is dedicated to implementing and supporting programs that address the causes and effects of inadequate health care worldwide. Their teams of medical, dental and other health professionals volunteer to serve in field stations, hospitals and clinics worldwide.

During the 2009 offseason, the Zorns were joined by the Holmgren family while hosting a fundraising event for Medical Teams International at FedExField.

Pro Athletes Outreach is a Christian conference ministry, which is led by former NFL offensive tackle Norm Evans and his wife, Bobbie. PAO trains professional athletes/coaches and their wives to become leaders in their home, community and in all areas of their lives.

BLACHE'S MOSH

Redskins Defensive Coordinator Greg Blache is in his second leading the unit after four seasons directing the defensive line. Blache was named defensive coordinator on January 26, 2008.

Under Blache's leadership, the Redskins finished fourth in overall defense in 2008, the fourth time in his five seasons with Washington the unit finished in the top 10 in the NFL (third in 2004, ninth in 2005 and eighth in 2007).

Blache's 2008 squad was forced to overcome a myriad of injuries to starters on both the defensive line and secondary, yet still finished among the top 10 in rush (eighth) and pass (seventh) defense. It allowed the sixth-fewest points in the league per game (18.5).

A veteran of 22 NFL seasons, Blache focuses on the importance of playing strong fundamental football, demonstrated by his unit's physical play in run defense. Washington limited opponents to just 95.4 rushing yards per game last season and only three opposing players totaled more than 100 yards rushing in a single game.

Additionally, Blache's secondary proved to be the strength of the defense despite the fact that his defensive backfield had 10 different starting lineups in 16 games in 2008. The Redskins defense limited opponents to just 193.4 passing yards per game and helped force the highest percentage of three-and-outs in the NFL.

Blache's leadership was also instrumental in developing unheralded seventh-round pick Chris Horton into a starting safety and member of Pro Football Weekly's All-Rookie Team, and seamlessly integrating cornerback DeAngelo Hall into the defense.

Perhaps the most impressive streak for the defense came in the middle of the season when, over a five game span, it held all five opponents to less than 275 yards of total offense, the first time the Redskins had accomplished a streak of that length since 1989.

In 2007, Blache was an integral part of helping the Redskins defense improve to eighth overall after being the 31st-ranked unit in 2006.

Blache's defensive line played a pivotal role as Washington finished fourth in the NFL in rush yardage allowed (91.3 avg.) in 2007 - a significant improvement from 2006 in which they finished 27th in the NFL (137.3 avg.) in the same category. Washington improved 23 spots in rushing defense in 2007, trailing only Tennessee, which moved up 25 places (30th overall to fifth overall).

In 2005, Blache's defensive line helped the Redskins finish ninth overall in total defense for the second consecutive year. In his first season with the Redskins in 2004, Blache made an immediate impact as Washington's defensive unit finished third overall and second in rush yardage allowed (81.5 avg.) - which represents the best overall ranking since Washington finished atop the league in rushing yards allowed with 80.6 yards per game in 1983.

Prior to joining the Redskins, Blache spent five seasons with the Chicago Bears as defensive coordinator. During his time in Chicago, the Bears defense saw tremendous improvement.

In 2003, his defense finished the season fifth in the NFC in total defense, and 14th in the NFL, the team's highest league ranking since 1998. During his tenure, Blache's defenses forced 138 turnovers, including 37 in 2001, the most by a Bears defense since 1990, and accounted for 13 touchdowns (two in 1999, four in 2000, five in 2001, one in 2002, and one in 2003).

The Redskins have established a decade-long tradition of boasting one the NFL's stingiest defenses, which has continued in the five years Blache has been part of the coaching staff and two seasons he has served as defensive coordinator.

Washington is one of five franchises (Baltimore, New England, Pittsburgh and Tampa Bay) to finish in the top five in overall defense in four of the last five years. It is also one of four teams (Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Tampa Bay) to rank in the top 10 overall seven times since 2000.

The Redskins defense returns eight starters from a unit that allowed the sixth-fewest points in the NFL last season. It has also welcomed the addition of one of the game's most dominant players in two-time All-Pro defensive tackle Albert Haynesworth and linebacker/defensive end Brian Orakpo, the team's first-round draft pick (No. 13 overall) in last April's draft.

Also returning are former starters Phillip Daniels and Reed Doughty. Daniels, a formidable run-stopper from his left defensive end spot, missed all of last season with a torn ACL. Doughty, who began last season as a starting safety, had his season cut short after playing in only four games because of illness and injury.

THE OPPONENT

The St. Louis Rams enter this week's contest with a 0-1 record. Led by first-year head coach Steve Spagnuolo and two-time Pro Bowl quarterback Marc Bulger, the Rams are looking to bounce back from a 2-14 campaign a year ago. Bulger, a nine-year veteran completed 17-of-36 passes (47.2%) for 191 yards in Week 1. He is currently ranked third on the Rams' all-time passing list.
Accompanying Bulger in the backfield is former Pro Bowl running back Steven Jackson.

Jackson is coming off a 16-carry, 67-yard performance against the Seattle Seahawks in Week 1. The six-year veteran is an equal threat through the air as he is on the ground, currently ranked fourth in the NFL in career receptions by a running back (211) and third in receiving yards (1,776) since 2005.

Bulger's primary receiving target is second-year pro Donnie Avery. The 5-foot-11 receiver recorded six catches for 46 yards last week, after finishing last season with 53 receptions for 674 yards and three touchdowns. Opposite of Avery is third-year player Laurent Robinson. Robinson hauled in five catches for 87 yards last game.

The success of the Rams rebuilding effort relies on their young, talented defense. Headlined by defensive ends Leonard Little and Chris Long, the Rams look to follow the lead of their defensive-minded coach in establishing a tough, hard-nosed mentality. Long posted six tackles in the season opener.

Rookie linebacker James Laurinaitis illustrated flashes of potential in Week 1, recording 14 tackles - one for a loss. Backing up Laurinaitis at the safety position is 2008 Rams MVP Oshiomogho Atogwe. Atogwe finished last season with five interceptions and a career-high 109 tackles, eight forced fumbles, and three fumble recoveries. The five-year veteran picked up this season where he left off, recording eight tackles and an interception last week.

Donnie Jones is responsible for the punting duties, while team captain Josh Brown will handle the kicking. Jones is coming off a career year after becoming the first NFL punter to average at least 50 yards per punt since Redskins' great Sammy Baugh in 1940. Jones ended Week 1 with eight punts for an average of 50.8. Brown completed 86 percent of his kicks last season.

Running back Kenneth Darby will handle kick returns with wide receiver Derek Stanley fielding punts.

ST. LOUIS RAMS HEAD COACH STEVE SPAGNUOLO

Steve Spagnuolo was introduced as the 25th head coach of the Rams in January. Spagnuolo came to the Rams after a stellar career as defensive coordinator of the New York Giants and was the architect of the defense in the Giants' 17-14 win in Super Bowl XLII. He was with New York for two seasons, after serving on the defensive staff of the Philadelphia Eagles for eight years. Spagnuolo coached in the college ranks for 16 years before joining the Eagles in 1999.

In the 2007 season, Spagnuolo's first as the Giants' defensive coordinator, the Giants won 15 of their last 18 regular-season and postseason games and capped their run with the dramatic Super Bowl victory over the previously unbeaten Patriots.

The win came against a team that had set a league record with 589 points in the regular season. Spagnuolo's defense hit the Pats' Tom Brady a dozen times and sacked him five times in an epic defensive effort, which held the most explosive team in NFL history to 137.3 yards less than its season average. The Patriots rushed for only 45 yards and did not have a single gain over 19 yards. New England, which had averaged almost 37 points per game during the season, had to settle for a mere 14. The Giants held the league's top three offensive teams, Green Bay (2), Dallas (3), and New England (1) to a total of 51 points during their postseason run.

In 2008, despite losing Michael Strahan to retirement and Osi Umenyiora to a preseason knee injury, Spagnuolo's defense still managed to increase its effectiveness. The team improved from seventh to fifth in total defense and won the NFC East with a 12-4 record.

In 37 regular-season and postseason games under Spagnuolo, the Giants' defense allowed opponents 17 points or fewer in 19 games. New York was 19-0 in those games and 17-2 in games where opposing quarterbacks had passer ratings lower than 75.0.

Spagnuolo was the Male Scholar Athlete of the Year at Springfield (Mass.) College in 1982, then took a graduate assistant's position at the University of Massachusetts. In 1983, his first pro football experience came as a pro personnel intern with the Washington Redskins.

The Redskins won the NFC title in 1983 and a berth in Super Bowl XVIII. The head coach was future Hall of Famer Joe Gibbs and a scout on the Redskins' staff was Billy Devaney, now the Rams' General Manager.
"I did the internship with the Redskins, got a taste for pro football and always had that in the back of my mind," said Spagnuolo.

The Redskins' experience behind him, Spagnuolo returned to the collegiate level as defensive line and special teams coach at Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., from 1984-86. he was at the University of Connecticut as defensive backs coach from 1987-89 before adding defensive coordinator duties from 1990-91.

In 1992, Spagnuolo made a second foray into professional football, coaching the defensive line and special teams for the Barcelona Dragons of the World League of American Football. After the spring in Europe, Spagnuolo briefly was a scout for the San Diego Chargers in 1993. Spagnuolo then moved to the University of Maine, serving first as defensive backs coach in 1993 before becoming the defensive coordinator/linebackers coach in 1994.
Positions as defensive backs coach at Rutgers (1994-95) and at Bowling Green (1996-97) were next. In 1998, Spagnuolo coached another season of pro football with the Frankfurt Galaxy of the renamed NFL Europe League.
Spagnuolo served as the Galaxy's defensive coordinator/linebackers coach and under his tutelage four of the Galaxy's six linebackers and nine of the 11 defensive starters went on to play in the NFL. The Galaxy defense ranked second in the league in total defense, helping the team to an 8-2 record and a World Bowl appearance.

Spagnuolo joined the Philadelphia Eagles in 1999, as a defensive assistant/quality control coach under the late Jim Johnson, working specifically with safeties. Spagnuolo was named defensive backs coach in 2001 and linebackers coach in 2004 before joining the New York Giants in 2007.

While with the Eagles, Spagnuolo coached players, including Brian Dawkins, Bobby Taylor, Troy Vincent, Lito Sheppard, Michael Lewis and Jeremiah Trotter, to Pro Bowl berths in six of his eight seasons with the team. From 1999-2005, the Eagles ranked first in the NFL in third-down defense (33 percent), second in points allowed (17.0 per game), second in quarterback sacks (265), and third in red zone defense (43 percent).

From 1999-2005, the Eagles played in four NFC Championship games and one Super Bowl. In 2001, the Philadelphia defense did not allow more than 21 points in 16 regular-season games, only the fourth time in NFL history that feat has been accomplished.

In 2007, Spagnuolo's first season with the Giants, the New York defense rose from 25th in 2006 to seventh in 2007 in the NFL in yards allowed, an improvement of 37 yards per game. The Giants were in the NFL's top 10 in eight statistical categories and led the league for the first time in 10 seasons with 53 quarterback sacks. Defensive end Osi Umenyiora led the Giants with 13.0 sacks en route to a Pro Bowl selection.

Spagnuolo's defense followed a strong performance in 2007 by improving from seventh in yards allowed to fifth in 2008. The Giants allowed only 95.8 rushing yards per game, ninth in the NFL, and 196.2 passing yards per game, eighth in the NFL. The Giants allowed 18.4 points per game, fifth in the NFL and the team's 42 sacks ranked sixth in the NFL. Defensive end Justin Tuck paced the Giants' defense with 12 sacks, earning the first Pro Bowl berth of his career.

REDSKINS-RAMS SERIES

Sunday's game will be the 30th meeting between the Redskins and Rams franchises. Washington holds a 20-8-1 advantage in the regular season series, dating back to Nov. 21,1937 when the Redskins defeated the Cleveland Rams.

The teams have split four playoff meetings, with Washington winning the last two, both coming at home.

The Redskins have won six of the nine meetings against the Rams, but St. Louis has been victorious in the last two, narrowly defeating Washington 37-31 in overtime in 2006 and winning 17-16 on a field goal as time expired last year.

Washington is 8-5 all-time against the Rams in Washington, while St. Louis is 2-1 at FedExField. The Redskins have also won both home playoff contests in the series.

THE LAST TIME

Redskins Fall to Rams On Late Field Goal

By Gary Fitzgerald
Redskins.com

In a Week 6 contest between the two teams last year, the Redskins came in riding a four-game winning streak. Across the field, the winless St. Louis Rams arrived just hoping to establish some positive momentum.
Surprisingly, the Redskins found it tough going against the Rams.

They rallied to take a 17-16 lead late in the fourth quarter at FedExField, but the Rams used a big play - a 43-yard pass from quarterback Marc Bulger to rookie wide receiver Donnie Avery - to get in position for a game-winning field goal.

It was no chip shot after Rams offensive lineman Richie Incognito was called for a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct, moving the ball back to the Redskins' 32-yard line.
But kicker Josh Brown connected on the 49-yard field goal with two seconds left to give the Rams a 19-17 victory.
It was a stunning loss for Washington, particularly after they had defeated NFC East rivals Dallas and Philadelphia on the road in the previous two weeks.

The offense committed three first-half fumbles - its first turnovers of the season - sabotaging any momentum they could muster.

Jason Campbell finished the game 18-of-26, for 208 yards, and Clinton Portis gained 129 yards and two touchdowns on 21 carries.

Rookie Chris Horton led the defense with nine tackles, including three for a loss. Shawn Springs and Anthony Montgomery recorded sacks of Bulger.
In the end, mistakes did the Redskins in.

"Once we expose the issues, and they were very obvious to us, players will see that a combination of things explain why we lost this football game," Jim Zorn said. "For our offense, we can afford a couple errors, but we can't afford everything to error."
Early in the first quarter, it was the Redskins who capitalized on a Rams turnover.

With the Rams pinned deep in their own territory, running back Steven Jackson took a handoff up the middle. Marcus Washington stripped him of the ball and LaRon Landry recovered the fumble at the Rams' 3-yard line.
On the next play, Portis ran right behind Jon Jansen and bulldozed into the end zone for a 3-yard touchdown, giving the Redskins an early 7-0 lead.

After the Rams responded with a 51-yard field goal by Brown, the Redskins' remarkable turnover streak ended.
The Redskins were driving into Rams territory when Chris Cooley caught a pass across the middle. He fought for extra yardage, but safety Oshiomogho Atogwe poked the ball loose. Linebacker Chris Draft pounced on the fumble for the recovery.

Midway through the second quarter, the offense committed another gaffe when Campbell could not handle a Casey Rabach snap. The ball bounced off Campbell's hands and defensive end Chris Long was there to snatch up the fumble.

Both times, the Redskins' defense stepped up and did not allow the Rams to get any offensive momentum.
Landry broke up a third-down pass to tight end Joe Klopfenstein to end one drive.

With the first half winding down, Campbell once again guided the Redskins downfield. Cooley made a diving, 28-yard grab and held on despite a hard hit by cornerback Jonathan Wade.

Facing a 1st-and-10 at the Rams' 16-yard line with 26 seconds left, Campbell dropped back to pass again. The pocket started to collapse, and he got off a throw.

The ball was batted in the air, and Redskins guard Pete Kendall pulled the ball in, but Rams linebacker Pina Tinoisamoa poked the ball loose. Atogwe was there.
He scooped up the fumble and raced 75 yards down the right sideline for a touchdown.

The Rams had the lead 10-7 going into halftime.
Early in the third quarter, St. Louis kept the pressure on as Jackson picked up chunks of yards to help move the Rams deep into Redskins territory.

Then Brown converted a 25-yard field goal to increase the Rams' lead to 13-7.
Later in the third quarter, Campbell was sacked by defensive end Leonard Little and fumbled the ball at the Redskins' 7-yard line.

Antwaan Randle El alertly raced in to recover the fumble, but the Redskins were ultimately forced to punt.
In what proved to be a critical mishap, Durant Brooks punted just 26 yards, giving the Rams great field position at the Redskins' 33-yard line.

The defense stepped up again and did not yield a first down, but Brown came on to kick another field goal--a 44-yarder--to give the Rams a 16-7 lead.

The fourth quarter began, and the Redskins needed to establish momentum--quickly.

Zorn stayed committed to the run game, and Portis and Ladell Betts found running room behind the right side of the line. Portis picked up 11 and nine yards on two runs, and then Betts came in for a 12-yard run.

At the Rams' 25-yard line, Campbell dropped back to pass but he was dragged down for a sack by Tinoisamoa.
Shaun Suisham came on to kick a 38-yard field goal, narrowing the Rams' lead to 16-10.

The Redskins would get the ball back with 8:18 remaining.

Again, it was the running game that helped the offense move downfield.

Portis picked up 29 yards following blocks by Chris Samuels and Kendall, quickly moving the Redskins into Rams territory.

Faced with a 3rd-and-14 at the Rams' 32-yard line, Campbell threw across the middle to Randle El, who caught the ball and eluded tacklers to get to the 2-yard line.
On the next play, Portis piled into the line behind Jansen for a 2-yard touchdown run, giving the Redskins the lead at 17-16.

There was 3:40 left on the clock, though.

And it proved to be just enough time for the Rams to steal a win over the Redskins.

PORT AUTHORITY

Since entering the National Football League in 2002, Clinton Portis has established himself as one of the premier running backs in football. With 9,264 career rushing yards, Portis ranks fifth among players who are currently on an NFL roster. His 72 career rushing touchdowns rank third, while his 92.3 rushing yards per game average (min. 32 games) ranks second, trailing only San Diego's LaDainian Tomlinson. Portis' 4.5 yards per carry average ranks fifth among active league running backs with at least 750 career carries, trailing Frank Gore, Fred Taylor, Brian Westbrook and Larry Johnson.

Portis is also rapidly establishing his place in Redskins history as he already ranks second in club annals in rushing yards and third in rushing attempts and rushing touchdowns, after just five seasons with the team.

With 1,370 rushing yards in 2009, Portis would surpass Hall of Famer John Riggins as the franchise's all-time leader. Portis needs three more rushing touchdowns to move past Stephen Davis for second place all-time in club history, trailing only Riggins.

| Terry Allen | 1995-98 | 4,086 | 1,043 | 37 |

In 2008, Portis reached the 1,250-yard plateau for the sixth time in seven professional seasons. He became the eighth player to reach the 1,250-yard figure six times in his career, joining Walter Payton (9), Barry Sanders (9), Jim Brown (7), Emmitt Smith (7), Eric Dickerson (6), Curtis Martin (6) and LaDainian Tomlinson (6). He joined Sanders, Dickerson and Tomlinson as the only players to reach 1,250 rushing yards six times in their first seven seasons. Sanders is the only one to hit the mark in seven of his first eight seasons.

The only year Portis did not reach the mark was in 2006 when he played in only eight games because of injury.

Additionally, Portis is one of only five players in league history to average at least 110.0 scrimmage yards per game (minimum 80 games). The five players to average at least 110.0 scrimmage yards per game are either still active or members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Portis' 1,487 yards in 2008 ranked fourth in the NFL, while his nine rushing touchdowns tied for 13th in the league and seventh in the NFC. He was also fourth in the NFL with 1,705 total yards from scrimmage.

Portis' 86 total first downs tied for the league lead and his 34 runs of 10 or more yards ranked sixth.

Portis also proved to be at his best late in the game as his 378 fourth-quarter rushing yards were fourth in the league, to Houston's Steve Slaton, Atlanta's Michael Turner and Baltimore's Le'Ron McClain, and Portis' 22 rushing first downs in the fourth quarter topped the NFL. For his efforts, Portis was chosen to his second Pro Bowl, his first as a Redskin, and earned Second-Team Associated Press All-Pro honors.

With 121 yards rushing against the Dallas Cowboys in a 26-24 win on Sept. 28, 2008, Portis passed Larry Brown and Hall of Famer John Riggins for most career regular-season 100-yard games in a Redskins uniform. He followed that up with five more 100-plus-yard efforts to extend record to 25. For his career, Portis has topped the century mark in a contest on 43 occasions. His teams are 33-10 in such games, including an 21-4 mark with the Redskins.

LONDON CALLING

Redskins linebacker London Fletcher earned the nickname "Bam Bam" as a child because of his fondness for the Flintstones cartoon and his propensity to ransack his home. In like manner, Fletcher has terrorized opponents for the last 11 seasons as one of the NFL's most consistent and productive defensive players. Fletcher continued that level of play in 2008 as he led the Redskins and tied for sixth in the NFL in tackles. Also, Fletcher has now opened 136 straight league contests, a figure which ranks fourth among players currently on an NFL roster.

NFL'S IRONMEN

MOST CONSECUTIVE STARTS AMONG PLAYERS ON AN NFL ROSTER

| Player | Team | Straight Starts |
|---|---|---|
| Brett Favre | Minnesota | 270 |
| Peyton Manning | Indianapolis | 177 |
| Ronde Barber | Tampa Bay | 152 |
| London Fletcher | Washington | 136 |
| Jeff Backus | Detroit | 129 |
| Keith Brooking | Dallas | 129 |
| Deon Grant | Seattle | 129 |

Furthermore, Fletcher has not missed a game since entering the league as a college free agent with St. Louis in 1998. His 177 consecutive games played is tied for second among players currently on an NFL roster behind Minnesota's Brett Favre.

MOST CONSECUTIVE GAMES PLAYED (excluding specialists)

| Brett Favre | Minnesota | 272 |
| London Fletcher | Washington | 177 |
| Ronde Barber | Tampa Bay | 177 |
| Peyton Manning | Indianapolis | 177 |
| Anthony Becht | Arizona | 137 |

Since joining the Redskins in 2007, Fletcher has led the team in tackles both seasons, while assuming a leadership and defensive captaincy role. He has been named a Pro Bowl alternate each of the last two years.

Fletcher anchored the St. Louis Rams' defense from his middle linebacker spot in 1999, leading the team in tackles with 138. While St. Louis' offense received much of the attention on the team's way to winning Super Bowl XXXIV, the defense ranked sixth in the league overall and first against the run. Fletcher is one of three Redskins players in 2008, who had been a part of a Super Bowl winner.

| London Fletcher | St. Louis | 1999 |
| Antwaan Randle El | Pittsburgh | 2005 |
| Hunter Smith | Indianapolis | 2006 |
| Todd Yoder | Tampa Bay | 2002 |

Fletcher enjoyed four seasons in St. Louis, leading the Rams in tackles from 1999-2001, before joining Buffalo from 2002-06. He led the Bills in tackles all five seasons and has continued that streak of leading his team in tackles to 10 straight seasons after two years in Washington.

With 145 tackles, 2008 marked the 10th straight season in which Fletcher recorded at least 100 tackles, dating back to 1999 when he was in his second season with the Rams. That is the longest current streak among all NFL players. Among Fletcher's 145 tackles were a team-high six for loss, while he also registered two forced fumbles, one fumble recovery, and nine passes defensed.

Among players currently on an NFL roster, Fletcher ranks second with 1,712 career tackles, behind only Baltimore's Ray Lewis.

| Ray Lewis | Baltimore | 2,198 |
| London Fletcher | Washington | 1,712 |
| Lawyer Milloy | Seattle | 1,586 |
| Keith Brooking | Dallas | 1,482 |
| Brian Urlacher | Chicago | 1,409 |

In fact, since the start of this decade, no player has amassed more tackles than Fletcher.

|---|---|---|
| London Fletcher | Washington | 1,262 |
| Zach Thomas | | 1,181 |
| Brian Urlacher | Chicago | 1,062 |
| Ray Lewis | Baltimore | 1,060 |
| Keith Brooking | Dallas | 1,023 |

In addition to winning the Redskins Defensive MVP Award in each of his first two seasons in Washington, Fletcher has become one of the team's most valuable players in the community.

The Cleveland native has actively participated in many of the team's community and charitable programs, including the "4th & Life" High School Football Forum, has spent time visiting wounded warriors at the Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington, D.C., and serving as the Sports Ambassador for the Children's Inn at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md. For these efforts, as well as his work in his hometown, Fletcher was named the Washington Redskins 2008 Walter Payton Man of the Year.

COLD PLAY

In 2008, Chris Cooley was second behind Kansas City's Tony Gonzalez among NFL tight ends with a career-high 83 receptions and fourth behind Gonzalez, Dallas' Jason Witten and Houston's Owen Daniels with a career-high 848 receiving yards. He was also fourth behind Gonzalez, Witten and Daniels with 43 first-down receptions.

In addition to making his mark as one of the most productive players at his position in Redskins history, Cooley, who garnered his second straight Pro Bowl selection following 2008, has established himself as one the NFL's premier tight ends.

His 321 catches and 3,525 receiving yards since entering the league both rank fourth among tight ends over that span, trailing the totals of Gonzalez, Witten and San Diego's Antonio Gates. His 29 touchdowns are fourth among tight ends over the last six seasons, behind Gates, Gonzalez and Indianapolis' Dallas Clark.

NFL TIGHT ENDS SINCE 2004

| Player | Team | Catches | Yards | TDs |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Tony Gonzalez | Atlanta | 448 | 5,293 | 30 |
| Jason Witten | Dallas | 394 | 4,588 | 24 |
| Antonio Gates | San Diego | 381 | 4,760 | 49 |
| Chris Cooley | Washington | 321 | 3,525 | 29 |

Note: Indianapolis' Dallas Clark is second among tight ends with 30 touchdowns since 2004.

Cooley's 83 catches in 2008 tied him for 11th in the NFL and fourth in the NFC, and broke his own club record for receptions by a tight end. His 849 receiving yards tied Jerry Smith's team record for most among tight ends in Redskins history. Cooley now owns four of the top five single-season reception and receiving yards totals among tight ends in franchise history.

TOP FIVE SINGLE-SEASON RECEIVING SEASONS BY TIGHT ENDS IN REDSKINS HISTORY

| Player | Year | Catches | Yards |
|---|---|---|---|
| Chris Cooley | 2008 | 83 | 849 |
| Jerry Smith | 1967 | 67 | 849 |
| Chris Cooley | 2007 | 66 | 786 |
| Chris Cooley | 2005 | 71 | 774 |
| Chris Cooley | 2006 | 57 | 734 |

The 6-foot-3, 250-pound Cooley has started all 16 regular season games in four consecutive seasons. His streak of 65 straight starts is the second-longest among NFL tight ends behind only Chicago's Desmond Clark (68). Cooley has been active in all 81 of the Redskins' contests since joining the team in 2004 and has made a reception in 73 consecutive regular-season games.

Cooley, who is the first tight end in NFL history to catch at least six touchdowns in his first four seasons, has also demonstrated his speed and athletic ability to run with the ball as evidenced by his 1,799 yards after catch (YAC), the most among NFL tight ends since he entered the league in 2004.

MOST YAC AMONG NFL TIGHT ENDS SINCE 2004

| Player | Team | YAC |
|---|---|---|
| Chris Cooley | Washington | 1,799 |
| Jason Witten | Dallas | 1,653 |
| Tony Gonzalez | Atlanta | 1,652 |
| Antonio Gates | San Diego | 1,641 |
| Alge Crumpler | Tennessee | 1,273 |

GATHER NO MOSS

With 79 catches for 1,044 yards and six touchdowns in 2008, Redskins wide receiver Santana Moss recorded the third 1,000-yard receiving season of his career. He also accomplished the feat in 2003 as a member of the New York Jets, and in 2005 when he went on to the Pro Bowl. In addition, Moss notched his second 75-catch season, which he first accomplished in 2005.

Moss' receiving yardage total was 14th in the NFL and sixth in the NFC, while his 79 catches were tied for sixth among NFC wide receivers. His six touchdown catches tied for 12th in the conference and 22nd in the league.

With a touchdown in the first three weeks of the season, Moss extended a streak dating back to last season of catching a scoring pass in six consecutive games, including playoffs. It tied a Redskins record held by Hall of Famer Bobby Mitchell, who did it in 1964, and is the second-longest streak of Moss's career behind the seven straight games he did it from Oct. 12-Nov. 23, 2003.

For his career, Moss owns 432 career receptions for 6,547 receiving yards (15.2) and 43 touchdowns. Since 2003, he ranks 12th in the NFL with 6,074 receiving yards and 17th with 398 receptions.

In just his fifth season with the Redskins, Moss is ranked eighth in club history with 281 career receptions, ninth all-time in receiving yards with 4,131, and tied for ninth in club history in receiving touchdowns with 24.

Moss trails Michael Westbrook in franchise career receiving yards by just 149 and with 1,109 yards this season, he could surpass Hugh Taylor and move into seventh place on the all-time list.

He set the club record for single-season receiving yards in 2005 with 1,483 yards on his way to the Pro Bowl.

Moss' 70-catch average during his four seasons with the Redskins is a record for a franchise that has employed Hall of Fame receivers Wayne Millner, Bobby Mitchell, Charley Taylor and Art Monk.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

Last season, Washington Redskins quarterback Jason Campbell, a native of Taylorsville, Miss., continued his progression under Head Coach Jim Zorn, while learning the nuances of the West Coast Offense.

Overall for the season, Campbell completed 319-of-506 pass attempts (62.3%) for 3,245 yards, with 13 touchdowns and six interceptions, for a passer rating of 84.3.

Campbell ranked first in the NFL in interception percentage (1.2) and was the 19th-rated passer in the league. He ranked 10th in attempts, 11th in completions, 15th in completion percentage and 16th in yards.

Campbell also rushed for 258 yards on 47 attempts (5.5 avg.), picking up 15 first downs in the process. His yardage total was the most among NFC quarterbacks and his 11 runs of at least 10 yards were tied for the second-most in the league among quarterbacks behind Ryan Fitzpatrick.

Campbell was the Redskins' opening game starter for the third straight season and is hoping to build from his first year in Head Coach Jim Zorn's West Coast Offense. This will mark the first time since he was in high school that Campbell will be a starting quarterback in the same offensive system in two consecutive seasons.

In 2008, Campbell started in a career-high 16 games and was named a team captain. He was one of the league's premier players through the first half of 2008 and finished the season completing 315-of-506 passing attempts (62.3%) for 3,245 passing yards with 13 touchdowns and six interceptions for a passer rating of 84.3.

Campbell's completions (315), passing attempts (506), passing yards (3,245), touchdown passes (13) and passer rating (84.3) were all career highs. Along the way, he set a club record with 271 consecutive passes without an interception (during parts of the 2007 and 2008 seasons), marking the fifth-longest streak in NFL history and the longest since Rich Gannon threw 277 passes without an interception for Oakland in 2000.

Campbell's 315 completions were just one shy of Brad Johnson's club single-season record of 316. His completions percentage of 62.3 was the fifth-best single-season mark in club history.

For his career, Campbell has completed 694-of-1,156 career passing attempts (60.0%) for 7,453 yards with 36 touchdowns and 24 interceptions for a passer rating of 80.7. He is currently ranked ninth all-time in club history in passing yards (7,453), seventh in passing attempts (1,156), seventh in completions (694), 11th in touchdown passes (36) and second in passer rating (80.7). In addition, he owns the highest career completion percentage (60.0) in club history (minimum 1,000 attempts).

WATCHING THE BLIND SIDE

Since Redskins left tackle Chris Samuels entered the league in 2000, the Alabama product has embedded himself as the team's franchise left tackle. The No. 3 overall pick in the 2000 NFL Draft has proven to be a consistent and durable anchor of the Redskins' offensive line.

Before being placed on injured reserve on Dec. 9, 2008, Samuels had started all but one game since the beginning of the 2004 season and has missed only eight contests in his eight-year career.

Since Samuels joined the Redskins' offensive line in 2000, the unit's 309 sacks allowed is the fourth-fewest total in the NFC, behind Green Bay (220), the New York Giants (293) and New Orleans (296).

The 6-foot-5, 317-pound Samuels was selected to sixth Pro Bowl following the 2008 season, including his fourth straight. That total ranks third among current NFL tackles behind only 12-year veterans Walter Jones and Orlando Pace, who have gone nine and seven times, respectively.

MOST PRO BOWL SELECTIONS AMONG ACTIVE NFL TACKLES

| Player | Team | Seasons | Pro Bowls |
|---|---|---|---|
| Walter Jones | Seattle | 12 | 9 (1999, 2001-08) |

| Chris Samuels | Washington | 9 | 6 (2001-02, 05-08) |
| Flozell Adams | Dallas | 11 | 4 (2003-04, 06-07) |

After nine seasons with the Redskins, Samuels is also already one of the most decorated players in franchise annals. Since the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl format was created, coinciding with the merger in 1970, Samuels' six Pro Bowl berths are the third-most in franchise history, behind only Darrell Green and Ken Houston, who each had seven selections (Charley Taylor was selected to four NFL All-Star Games and three Pro Bowls and Len Hauss was selected to three NFL All-Star Games and three Pro Bowls).

THE PREDATOR(s)

In each of the last two seasons, the Redskins have drafted a hard-hitting, ball-hawking safety that has gone on to earn All-Rookie team honors. The manner in which Washington acquired LaRon Landry (2007) and Chris Horton (2008), however, is a great contrast, but both are credits to the Redskins Personnel Department, led by Vice President of Football Operations Vinny Cerrato.

Landry was an All-American and three-time All-SEC performer at LSU who is a blend of size, strength and speed that is the prototype for the position. For that reason the Redskins drafted him with the sixth overall pick in 2007 to play alongside Pro Bowler Sean Taylor in the back end.

Following the tragic, untimely death of Taylor in 2007, Washington was in need of a playmaking safety to pair with Landry. This time, the Redskins found their man near the end of the draft, nabbing Chris Horton in the seventh round in 2008 with the 249th overall selection.

After what the pair has shown in just three combined full professional seasons, Washington once again believes it has one of the best safety combinations in the National Football League.

Horton, who goes by the nickname, The Predator, which could equally describe Landry, made a quick impact in his rookie season in 2008 out of UCLA.

Horton was named the NFC Defensive Player of the Week following a week two win over New Orleans when he registered two interceptions and a fumble recovery in his first NFL start.

In that game, he became the first NFL player with two interceptions and a fumble recovery in his first career start since Liffort Hobley on Oct. 11, 1987, the first NFL rookie with two interceptions and a fumble recovery in his first career start since Paul Tripoli on Oct. 4, 1987, the first Redskins player with two interceptions and a fumble recovery in the same game since Anthony Washington on Dec. 4, 1983, and the first Redskins rookie with two interceptions and a fumble recovery in same game since Brig Owens on Nov. 27, 1966.

Horton was also named NFL Defensive Rookie of the Month for September.

Despite missing two contests in 2008, Horton was third on the team with 81 tackles and registered a team-high three interceptions, seven passes defensed, one fumble recovery, one forced fumble and six special-teams tackles. He was also tied for second on the team with five tackles for loss.

Following the season, Horton was named to the All-Rookie team, the lowest-drafted player on offense or defense to receive the honor.

Horton, a football junkie, who has an unquenchable thirst for knowledge, is safely entrenched as a key cog in the Redskins defense looking to make even more of an impact.

Following a 2007 season in which he earned All-Rookie honors, Landry continued his emergence as one of the NFL's best safeties in 2008. After moving to free safety full-time at the start of training camp, Landry recorded 70 tackles, two forced fumbles, one fumble recovery, two interceptions and 13 passes defensed.

In his second year from LSU, Landry was voted as the first alternate to the NFC Pro Bowl squad behind Brian Dawkins and Adrian Wilson.

Recognized as one of the rising stars in the National Football League, Landry compiled seven tackles, one pass defensed and a half-sack in the regular season opener against the New York Giants. His performance prompted Pro Football Hall of Fame coach John Madden, who was broadcasting the game for NBC in front of a nationally-televised audience, to laud the Redskins' top pick (sixth overall) in the 2007 NFL Draft:

"This guy is going to be a superstar in this league...and before it is all over he is going to be a very special player."

Landry, whose brother Dawan is a safety for the Baltimore Ravens, is perhaps the most athletically gifted player on the team, mixing his chiseled 6-foot, 210-pound frame with superior speed and range.

The pair shores up the back end for what Washington hopes is a dominating front seven and a pair of shutdown cornerbacks.

| Player | Position | Year |
| Chris Horton | Safety | 2008 |

WORTH IT

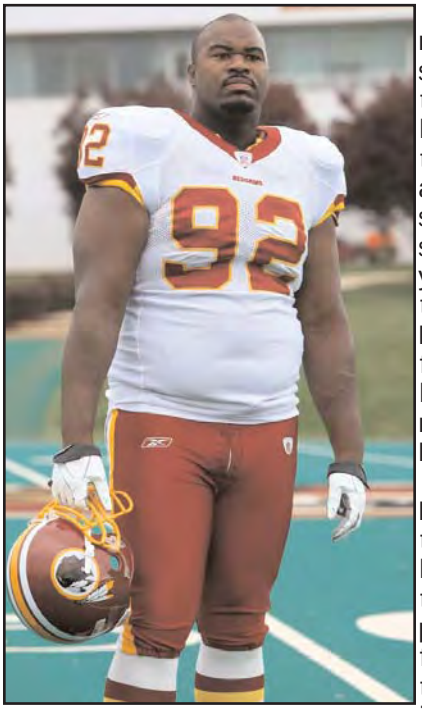
The Redskins made the biggest splash, literally and figuratively, in free agency when they signed 6-foot-5, 350-pound defensive tackle Albert Haynesworth. One of the most disruptive and dominant forces in the game, Washington is expecting to reap the rewards of Haynesworth's individual abilities, while he also elevates the performances of his defensive teammates.

Haynesworth spent the first seven years of his National Football League career with the Tennessee Titans, who drafted him No. 15 overall in 2002 out of the University of Tennessee. He joins the Redskins following back-to-back seasons in which he earned first-team All-Pro honors.

In 2008, Haynesworth registered 75 tackles, including seven for loss, 8.5 sacks, 19 quarterback pressures, four forced fumbles, one fumble recovery and one pass defensed. He was fourth in the Associated Press NFL Defensive Player of the Year voting, which followed a third-place finish in 2007. Haynesworth was the only player to finish in the top five the last two years.



The Hartsville, S.C., native has 24 career sacks, with 14.5 of them coming in the last two seasons. That total is the highest among all NFL defensive tackles during this span. His 8.5 sacks last year ranked seventh in the AFC, 15th in the NFL, and was tied for first among the league's interior linemen with Minnesota's Kevin Williams.

For his career, Haynesworth has totaled 461 career tackles, 24.0 sacks, 48 tackles for loss, 12 passes defensed, seven forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries in 91 games (75 starts).

In addition, with Haynesworth anchoring Tennessee's defensive front, in 2007 and 2008, the Titans placed fifth and seventh against the run and seventh and fifth in the NFL sacks, respectively. They allowed an average of 93.1 rushing yards per game over the last two seasons, the fourth-lowest in the league behind Minnesota, Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

The Titans' 84 sacks in the past two years are the fifth-most behind the Cowboys, Giants, Steelers and Eagles. Tennessee's 14.6 points per game allowed last season was the second-best mark in the NFL.

KID IN THE HALL

The Redskins acquired cornerback DeAngelo Hall on Nov. 8, 2008 and he immediately paid dividends, collecting two interceptions and a fumble recovery in his first five games with the team.

His first interception came in his Redskins debut, when he picked off Dallas' Tony Romo, and his second came two weeks later against Eli Manning and the Giants. Overall in 2008, Hall tied for sixth in the NFL with five interceptions and was fifth with 21 passes defensed.

Hall re-signed with the Redskins minutes before the start of free agency in February and has found a comfort zone back in his home state of Virginia. The two-time Pro Bowler expects to have the kind of season that will once again place him among the elite cornerbacks in the game.

He totaled 27 tackles (21 solo), two interceptions, eight passes defensed and one fumble recovery with the Redskins.

In his brief stint with the Redskins last season, Hall showed that he still has the playmaking ability that once made him the eighth overall selection in the 2004 draft.

Since entering the league that season, Hall is tied with Rashean Mathis for the fifth-most interceptions (23) in the NFL, behind Ed Reed (31), Champ Bailey (25) Asante Samuel (24) and Darren Sharper (24). Hall has also shown he knows what to do when he does have the ball in his hands as his 493 interception return yards over that span are the third-most in the league.

MOST INTERCEPTIONS SINCE 2004

| Player | Team | Interceptions |
|---|---|---|
| Ed Reed | Baltimore | 31 |
| Champ Bailey | Denver | 25 |
| Asante Samuel | Philadelphia | 25 |

| Darren Sharper | New Orleans | 535 |
| DeAngelo Hall | Washington | 493 |
| Rashean Mathis | Jacksonville | 441 |

Likewise, Hall has stayed among the game's best thievs over the past two-plus seasons.

2009 WASHINGTON REDSKINS BY POSITION

QUARTERBACKS (2)/RETURNING STARTERS (1)

In the season opener, quarterback Jason Campbell completed 19 of his 26 passes (73.1%) for 211 yards, throwing his first touchdown of the season to tight end Chris Cooley late in the fourth quarter. Campbell also threw an interception, finishing with a passer rating of 93.6. During the game, Campbell passed Jay Schroeder for the ninth spot in career passing yards by a Redskin (7,453).

Campbell entered the regular season as the Redskins starter for the third straight season hoping to build from his first year in Head Coach Jim Zorn's West Coast Offense. This marked the first time since high school that Campbell will be a starting quarterback in the same offensive system in two consecutive seasons.

In 2008, Campbell started a career-high 16 games and was named a team captain. He was one of the league's premier players through the first half of 2008 and finished the season completing 315-of-506 passing attempts (62.3%) for 3,245 passing yards with 13 touchdowns and six interceptions for a passer rating of 84.3.

Campbell's completions (315), passing attempts (506), passing yards (3,245), touchdown passes (13) and passer rating (84.3) were all career highs, while his interception percentage (1.2) was the lowest in the NFL. Campbell set a club record with 271 consecutive passes without an interception (during parts of the 2007 and 2008 seasons), marking the fifth-longest streak in NFL history; longest since Rich Gannon threw 277 passes without an interception for Oakland in 2000.

Campbell's 315 completions were just one shy of Brad Johnson's club single-season record of 316. His completions percentage of 62.3 was the fifth-best single-season mark in club history.

In addition to leading the team with his arm, Campbell finished second on the club with 258 rushing yards, fifth among NFL quarterbacks and leading all NFC signal callers.

For his career, Campbell has completed 694-of-1,156 career passing attempts (60%) for 7,453 yards with 36 touchdowns and 24 interceptions for a passer rating of 80.7. He is currently ranked ninth all-time in club history in passing yards (7,453), seventh in passing attempts (1,156), seventh in completions (694), 11th in touchdown passes (36) and second in passer rating (80.7). In addition, he owns the highest career completion percentage (60%) in club history (minimum 1,000 attempts).

Backing up Campbell is steady veteran Todd Collins. Collins is entering his 15th season and has proven his value as one of the NFL's best backup quarterbacks many times over his career. The most recent example was when Collins stepped in for an injured Campbell at the end of the 2007 season and led Washington to four straight victories and a playoff berth.

RUNNING BACKS (5)/RETURNING STARTERS (2)

Clinton Portis, who earned All-Pro and Pro Bowl honors last season, leads a stable of proven, experienced running backs. Entering his eighth season, Portis has amassed 9,264 career rushing yards on 2,068 carries (4.5 avg.) with 72 rushing touchdowns and 234 career receptions for 1,916 yards (8.18 avg.) and four touchdowns.

With his 1,487 rushing yards last season, which ranked fourth in the NFL, Portis became the 28th player in NFL history to top the 9,000-yard mark. Among players currently on an NFL roster, Portis ranks fourth in career rushing yards (9,264), fourth in career rushing attempts (2,068), second in career rushing touchdowns (72) and second in rushing yards per game (92.3).

Portis is one of eight players in NFL history to rush for at least 1,250 yards in a season six times, joining Walter Payton (9), Barry Sanders (9), Jim Brown (7), Emmitt Smith (7), Eric Dickerson (6), Curtis Martin (6) and LaDainian Tomlinson (6). Portis, Sanders, Dickerson and Tomlinson are the only players to reach 1,250 rushing yards six times in their first seven seasons.

In addition, Portis has averaged 110.7 yards from scrimmage per game in his career, making him one of five players in NFL history, along with Jim Brown (125.5), LaDainian Tomlinson (122.5), Barry Sanders (118.9) and Walter Payton (111.9) to average more than 110.0 yards from scrimmage per game.

As a Redskin, Portis ranks second all-time in club history in rushing yards (6,165), third in rushing attempts (1,505), third in rushing touchdowns (43) and 10th in total touchdowns (45). He owns a franchise record 25 career 100-yard rushing games.

Fellow eight-year veteran Ladell Betts will serve as Portis' primary backup. In 93 career games, with 11 starts, Betts has totaled 2,965 rushing yards on 722 carries (4.1 avg.) and 11 touchdowns, as well as 149 career receptions for 1,349 yards (9.0 avg.) and three touchdowns.

Filling in for an injured Portis in 2006, Betts amassed career highs in rushing yards (1,154), rushing attempts (245), receptions (53) and total touchdowns (5).

Rock Cartwright, also in his eighth season, adds depth to the backfield and serves as the team's primary kickoff returner. Since entering the role in 2006, Cartwright has totaled 4,537 yards on 186 kickoff returns (24.4 avg.), which both rank second in club annals, trailing only NFL-record holder Brian Mitchell.

Marcus Mason, who led the entire NFL in preseason rushing yards a year ago, earned a roster spot after making his third trip to Redskins' training camp.

Bruising fullback Mike Sellers earned his first Pro Bowl selection in his ninth NFL season in 2008. In his career, Sellers has appeared in 130 games with 47 starts at fullback, H-back and at tight end. He has blocked for a 1,000-yard rusher in a single-season in seven of his eight seasons with the Redskins (Stephen Davis in 1999 and 2000, Clinton Portis in 2004-05 and 2007-08 and Ladell Betts in 2006). Sellers is also a threat with the ball in his hands as he has totaled 85 career receptions for 680 yards (8.0 avg.) and 16 touchdowns, as well as 156 career yards rushing on 46 carries (3.4 avg.) with three touchdowns.

WIDE RECEIVERS (5)/RETURNING STARTERS (2)

The explosive Santana Moss will once again lead the receiving corps. In 2008, Moss started in all 16 regular season games, finishing second on the Redskins in receptions (79) and leading the team in receiving yards (1,044) and touchdown receptions (6). It was the third 1,000-yard receiving season of his career and the total ranked eighth in the NFC and 14th in the NFL

For his career, Moss has played in 112 career games with 90 starts and owns 432 career receptions for 6,547 receiving yards (15.15) and 43 touchdowns. After just four seasons with the Redskins, he is ranked eighth in club history with 281 career receptions, ninth in receiving yards with 4,131, and tied for ninth (Michael Westbrook) in receiving touchdowns with 24. In 2005, Moss set the club record for receiving yards in a single season with 1,483 yards. His 70-catch average during his four seasons with the club is a record for a franchise that has employed Hall of Fame receivers Wayne Millner, Bobby Mitchell, Charley Taylor and Art Monk.

Last Sunday, working primarily from the slot receiver position, Antwaan Randle El finished with a team high 98 receiving yards on 7 catches. He proved to be quarterback Jason Campbell's go to receiver as he was targeted 9 times by Campbell.

Randle El, who last year started all 16 games, finished second on the team in receiving touchdowns (4) and third on the team in receptions (53) and receiving yards (593). His receptions and receiving touchdown totals were career highs. In addition, Randle El tossed a touchdown pass, his fourth in the regular season in his seven seasons. For his career, Randle El has completed 20-of-25 passing attempts (80.0%) for 281 yards and four touchdowns for a 153.1 passer rating, making him the highest-rated passer in NFL history among players who have at least 12 attempts. Randle El also served as the team's primary punt returner in 2008, registering 39 returns for 254 yards (6.5 avg.).

Second-year receivers Malcolm Kelly and Devin Thomas will look to add a spark to the Redskins offense. After being hampered by a hamstring injury in training camp a year ago, Thomas emerged and saw significant time as the season progressed. He finished with 15 receptions for 120 yards, while also rushing three times for 53 yards, including a 29-yard touchdown run.

Kelly, an imposing target at 6-foot-4, 227 pounds, will look to bounce back from a knee injury that limited him for most of 2008.

Seventh-round draft pick Marko Mitchell finished second in the NFL in receiving touchdowns (3) during the preseason.

TIGHT ENDS (3)/RETURNING STARTERS (1)

Last week in New York, Chris Cooley finished with 7 catches for 68 yards and recorded his first touchdown of the season, a 17-yard pass from quarterback Jason Campbell. Cooley, fresh off two consecutive Pro Bowl nods, has been one of the league's premier tight ends since entering the NFL in 2004. From that season, among tight ends, he ranks fourth in receptions (321), fourth in receiving yards (3,525) and fourth in receiving touchdowns (29).

Cooley has not missed a game in five NFL seasons, appearing in 81 career contests with 74 starts, including 65 in a row. He has caught a pass in 73 consecutive games, owning four of the top five receiving seasons by a tight end in club history (83 receptions in 2008, 71 in 2005, 66 in 2007 and 57 in 2006) and enters the season ranked second in Redskins history in receptions by a tight end (321), second in receiving yards by a tight end (3,525) and second in touchdowns by a tight end (29).

The talented Fred Davis will look to make strides in his second year after being a second-round draft choice in 2008. The 6-foot-4, 257-pound Davis was the John Mackey Award winner, given annually to the nation's best tight end, as a senior at Southern California in 2007.

Todd Yoder, entering his 10th NFL season serves as a valuable blocking tight end. Yoder has also demonstrated soft hands, catching eight passes for 50 yards and a touchdown in 2008.

OFFENSIVE LINEMEN (10)/RETURNING STARTERS (4)

Six-time Pro Bowler Chris Samuels returns to anchor the offensive line from his left tackle spot. The longest-tenured Redskin has started 136 regular season games and three postseason contests for Washington. His six Pro Bowl berths, including four in a row, are the third-most in franchise history, trailing only Ken Houston and Darrell Green (7). His six selections also place him third among active tackles, trailing only Seattle's Walter Jones (9) and Chicago's Orlando Pace (7).

Samuels will be reunited this season on the left side with good friend Derrick Dockery, who returns from a two-year hiatus in Buffalo, where he helped Bills running back Marshawn Lynch to two consecutive 1,000-yard rushing seasons. Dockery has played in 96 consecutive games, with 93 consecutive starts, which rank fourth and fifth, respectively, among NFL guards.

Center Casey Rabach returns to the middle to lead the unit for his fifth consecutive season. Rabach has appeared in 105 regular season contests with 86 starts, including 63 of the last 64 games for the Redskins (missed a game with an injured groin vs. Arizona, 10/21/07).

Right guard Randy Thomas started all 16 games last season and was named a Pro Bowl alternate. Entering his 11th NFL season, Thomas has started in 141 career games. He has blocked for three different running backs to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a single season in nine of his 11 NFL seasons (Curtis Martin, New York Jets, 1999-02; Clinton Portis, Washington, 2004-05 and 2007-2008; Ladell Betts, Washington, 2006).

Stephon Heyer earned the right tackle spot during training camp. Heyer, who made the team as an undrafted free agent in 2007, has provided key depth for the Redskins the last two seasons, making 12 starts (eight at right tackle, four at left tackle).

Veteran Mike Williams will also be in the mix. Williams, a former No. 4 overall draft pick, is hoping to resurrect his football career after shedding more than 100 pounds since February.

Guard/tackle Chad Rinehart, a third-round pick in 2008, has impressed coaches with his growth and development since the end of last season and will provide depth to the unit. Guard/center Will Montgomery and tackle D'Anthony Batiste all spent parts of 2008 on the Redskins active roster and/or practice squad. Montgomery was impressive during training camp as a backup center who also has the ability to play guard. College free agent Edwin Williams will provide additional depth along the offensive line.

DEFENSIVE LINE (9)/STARTERS RETURNING (2)

The Redskins started the 2009 offseason by adding one of the most dominant defensive players in the NFL when they signed two-time Pro Bowl defensive tackle Albert Haynesworth. In seven seasons in Tennessee, Haynesworth totaled 454 tackles, 24 sacks, 47 tackles for loss, 12 passes defensed, seven forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries. Haynesworth is coming off a 2008 season in which he posted a career-high 8.5 sacks and finished in the top five of the Associated Press NFL Defensive Player of the Year balloting for the second consecutive season.

Haynesworth will team with veteran defensive tackle Cornelius Griffin to form a stout tandem in the middle. Griffin, who has been with the Redskins since 2004, enters the season with 504 tackles, 27 sacks, two interceptions and 23 passes defensed. Last season, while serving as a team captain, Griffin totaled 35 tackles, including two for a loss, one sack and one interception.

Right end Andre Carter recorded the Redskins first sack of the 2009 season last week. Carter forced a fumble in the process, which was recovered by Lorenzo Alexander. Carter returns for his fourth season in Washington after spending the first five of his career with the 49ers. In 2008, Carter led the Redskins with four sacks and helped the unit finish fourth in the NFL in overall defense (288.8 ypg) and eighth in the league in rushing yards allowed (95.4 ypg). Carter has led all Redskins defensive linemen in tackles for the previous three seasons (72 in 2006, 67 in 2007 and 51 in 2008).

On the other side of the line, veteran Phillip Daniels returns after missing the entire 2008 season with a torn ACL. Daniels, who is a competitive power lifter, has amassed 573 tackles (364 solo), 59 sacks, 16 forced fumbles, 12 fumble recoveries and one interception in his 13 seasons in the league.

To add depth on the defensive line, the Redskins brought back Renaldo Wynn, who last played for Washington in 2006. Wynn spent the last two seasons with the Saints and Giants, respectively, and enters his 13th year in the NFL with 518 tackles (282), 27 sacks, three passes defensed, six forced fumbles and five fumble recoveries.

Also expected to see significant playing time this season is the versatile Lorenzo Alexander. Alexander will rotate at defensive tackle, defensive end and special teams. Alexander posted career highs last season in tackles (26), sacks (2) and passes defensed (2).

Joining Alexander in reserve roles are defensive tackles Kedric Golston and Anthony Montgomery, both former starters. The two enter their fourth season in Washington and will provide depth up the middle while competing for playing time in the rotation.

The final offseason addition to the Redskins roster came right before training camp as the team added defensive end Jeremy Jarmon. The Redskins selected the Kentucky standout in the third round of the 2009 NFL Supplemental Draft. Jarmon started 31-of-39 career games at the University of Kentucky, finishing third in school history with 17.5 career sacks. Following his sophomore season in 2007, Jarmon earned All-Southeastern Conference second-team honors from the league's coaches and was a first-team selection by Rivals.com.

LINEBACKERS (6)/RETURNING STARTERS (2)

London Fletcher continued his reliable and productive play in the season opener. He finished with a team high 18 tackles (11 Solo). Fletcher, who started all 16 games in 2008, led the team in tackles with 146 (95 solo) and tied for second on the team with two forced fumbles. He added nine passes defensed, one fumble recovery and a half-sack on his way to being named a Pro Bowl alternate.

Fletcher has not missed game since entering the league as a college free agent with St. Louis in 1998. His streak of playing in 177 consecutive games is tied with Indianapolis' Peyton Manning and Tampa Bay's Ronde Barber for the longest consecutive streak among active players, excluding specialists, who are currently on an NFL roster.

Fletcher has made 161 career starts, including 136 in a row, which trails only Manning (177) and Tampa Bay's Ronde Barber (152).

For his career, Fletcher has totaled 1,713 tackles (1,121 solo), 14 interceptions, two touchdowns, 28 sacks, 13 forced fumbles and nine fumble recoveries. He has led his team in tackles for 10 consecutive seasons (1999-2008), topping the 100-tackle plateau each time.

Fletcher's 1,262 tackles this decade (according to STATS, Inc.) are the most in the NFL, topping Zach Thomas, Donnie Edwards, Brian Urlacher, Derrick Brooks and Ray Lewis, respectively.

Starting alongside Fletcher for the third straight year will be Rocky McIntosh. After returning from a torn ACL which prematurely ended his 2007 season, McIntosh played in 16 games last season, with a career-high 15 starts. He finished second on the team with 104 tackles, tied for second in forced fumbles (2) and fourth in sacks (2).

The Redskins first-round draft pick (No. 13 overall) Brian Orakpo will be looked upon to fill the strongside linebacker role, while also being used as a pass-rush specialist. Orakpo wrapped up his stellar collegiate career at Texas in 2008 by winning the Nagurski Trophy (nation's top defensive player), Lombardi Award (nation's top lineman) and Hendricks Award (nation's top defensive end). He was a unanimous first-team All-America selection by the American Football Coaches Association, Associated Press, Football Writers Association of America, Sporting News and Walter Camp Football Foundation, as well as the consensus Big 12 Defensive Player of the Year and a unanimous first-team All-Big 12 selection.

Similar to Orakpo, third-year player Chris Wilson will move from his defensive end spot to add depth at linebacker. Wilson will continue while also seeing action as a situation pass-rusher with his hand in the dirt.

H.B. Blades, who has played in 32 games during his first two seasons, with five starts, will serve as a valuable reserve at all three linebacker positions.

Sixth round draft pick Robert Henson will be looked to as key special teams contributor.

DEFENSIVE BACKS (10)/RETURNING STARTERS (4)

The Redskins return one the NFL's most talented secondaries, featuring cornerbacks DeAngelo Hall and Carlos Rogers, and safeties Chris Horton and LaRon Landry. Hall, a two-time Pro Bowl selection, joined the Redskins midway through the 2008 season and immediately paid dividends, totaling 27 tackles (21 solo), two interceptions, eight passes defensed and one fumble recovery in seven games.

In a combined 15 games spent with the Raiders and Redskins last season, Hall tied for sixth in the NFL with five interceptions and was fifth with 21 passes defensed. His interception total (11) over the last two-plus seasons is tied for fourth in the NFL.

In 2008, Rogers, a first-round pick in 2005 (No. 9 overall), returned from an ACL tear that ended his 2007 season after just seven games and anchored the league's seventh-ranked pass defense. He registered 53 tackles, a team-best 32 passes defensed, two interceptions and one fumble recovery. His passes defensed total tied for the NFL lead (according to NFL GSIS).

Horton, a seventh-round selection in 2008, exploded onto the scene early last season and ended the year by being named to the All-Rookie Team - the lowest drafted player on the offensive or defensive team to be selected. He was named NFL Defensive Rookie of the Month for September and earned NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors in his first career start against New Orleans (9/14). In that contest, he became the first NFL player since Liffort Hobley on October 11, 1987 to record two interceptions and a fumble recovery in his first career start (vs. New Orleans, 9/14). He later became the first rookie to record four takeaways in his first four games since San Diego's Andre Young did it in 1982.

Horton's three interceptions led the team and were the most by a Redskins rookie in a single season since the late Sean Taylor posted four interceptions in 2004.

Landry, the No. 6 overall pick in the 2007 NFL Draft, is a rare combination of size and speed, who continued his emergence as one of the NFL's best safeties in 2008. He was selected as a Pro Bowl first alternate after being named a third alternate as a rookie in 2007. Landry has started all 32 career games and last season finished with 70 tackles and was second on the team with two interceptions and 11 passes defensed.

Fred Smoot, entering his ninth NFL season, who will see plenty of action, serves as the teams most experienced defensive back. Smoot has played in 115 career games with 98 starts, and has tallied 434 career tackles (362 solo), 21 interceptions, five forced fumbles and three fumble recoveries. Last season, Smoot played in all 16 regular season games with nine starts, registering 58 tackles, one interception and seven passes defensed.

A pair of young cornerbacks, Justin Tryon (fourth-round pick in 2008) and Kevin Barnes (third-round pick in 2009), have coaches excited with their potential, showing much growth this past offseason.

SPECIALISTS (3)/RETURNING STARTERS (2)

Kicker Shaun Suisham returns for his third training camp with the Redskins. For his career, Suisham has connected on 68-of-87 field goal attempts (78.1%) and 78-of-79 extra point attempts for 282 points with Washington and Dallas. He is the all-time leader in Redskins' history in field goal percentage (79%), connecting on 64-of-81 field goals (minimum 40 attempts). His 64 field goals are the most in club history.

Veteran punter Hunter Smith joins the Redskins after 10 successful seasons in Indianapolis. Smith will be looked upon to significantly bolster a punting game which struggled in 2008. For his career, Smith has played in 161 games and totaled 582 punts for 25,231 yards (43.4 avg.), and a net average of 35.2 yards.

Long snapper Ethan Albright, a Pro Bowl selection in 2007, enters his 15th NFL season looking to remain one of the league's most consistent players at his position. Albright has appeared in all 16 regular season games for the past 13 seasons (209 contests) with Buffalo, 1996-2000, and Washington, 2001-2008.

Rock Cartwright and Antwaan Randle El, the primary kickoff and punt returners, respectively, in 2008, both return. Others who could possibly see opportunities as returners include Ladell Betts, DeAngelo Hall, Santana Moss and Devin Thomas
